

Map showing the 3 large main areas the Council want to build on, plus and 7 extra sites, where several additional properties are suggested, filling in every single spare piece of open land, and also suggesting that areas like the Court Mount static homes site could be used.

One of the 7 sites has already been developed and now contains 6 houses in a small yard beside the railway line, with only one very narrow entrance into the yard. If there was a fire at the entrance to the site, residents only have a high chicken-wire onto a railway line on one side and six-foot high burr-brick walls on the other sides.

This image does not include the additional site on the north side of the railway, which appears to be the the bowling green. Have the Bowls Club members been asked for their opinion?
